ClearCase Server and open the ClearCase Plugins pane. In the the ClearCase Plugins pane look for a folder titled: ctp- .jar Open the folder named ctp- and copy all of the following: You will need the following files for the plugin to work: Now you are ready to install the plugin. Run the uninstall.command: uninstall.command description: The uninstall command is used to uninstall ClearCasePlugin from your jEdit. ClearCasePlugin must be installed before it is run. The setenv command is used to set ClearCasePlugin system variables. ClearCasePlugin uses the variable to perform all its actions. ClearCasePlugin.jar Files It is recommended that you execute the install.command and the uninstall.command in the same directory. This way all the ClearCasePlugin.jar files are installed into the same directory. For example, on Windows machines, you can execute the commands: install.command and uninstall.command in the same directory as ClearCasePlugin.jar and the setup.properties file. When you execute the install.command or uninstall.command, ClearCasePlugin.jar will be downloaded, and it will be installed into a folder in your jEdit installation folder. If you run the setup.properties file with a file manager, ClearCasePlugin.jar is downloaded into a folder named "jEditPlugin." The folder "jEditPlugin" is located at ClearCasePlugin Download All Files If you download the ClearCasePluginAll.zip file you can install all the ClearCasePlugin's files into a single directory. When this is done, you only need to execute the install.command and the uninstall.command in the same directory where the ClearCasePluginAll.zip and the setup.properties are located. While the latest version of ClearCasePluginAll.zip contains both the ClearCasePlugin.jar and the setup.properties files, it also contains ClearCasePlugin.dll files, ClearCasePlugin JNLP files and the ClearCasePluginAll.sh script.

If you are going to use this version of ClearCasePluginAll.zip, 09e8f5149f
