Confirmed Ground Confirmed Ground is the sixth studio album by English gothic rock band Bauhaus. The album was released in the UK on 31 October 1980, and the following day in the United States. It was the band's final album for Charisma Records. It was released as a five-song EP in the US in January 1981. Confirmed Ground is notable for its introduction of the organ, which was performed by Alan Moulder. The album is also notable for its cover art. The original artwork is abstract, but subsequent editions have more overt imagery. It was remastered in 1994 for the release of Bauhaus's catalogue on Music for Nations. Promotion The album was promoted with two singles, "If I Could" and "The Numbers Don't Add Up". The latter had a re-recorded "old school" Bauhaus sound.
