Roy Moore responded to Alabama Senate candidate Luther Strange's endorsement with "guarded optimism." Photos: Bob Gruen/WireImage; John Synder/REX/Shutterstock Roy Moore responded to Alabama Senate candidate Luther Strange's endorsement with "guarded optimism" on Thursday at a Christian radio station in Jackson, Ala. "I'm pleased Luther Strange has agreed to be the Alabama nominee for the United States Senate," Moore said. "All Americans should be proud he is our nominee. He has more than 40 years of public service under his belt. His family has a great proven record and the record shows Luther Strange is a good man and an effective leader." Moore later asked listeners to vote for Strange to "reverse the tide," and asserted that "if people vote for each other we win, if they vote for change, it is not happening." He added: "All children should be respected and loved. No child should be treated differently based upon their mother's race or father's race or their gender. We need to have a voice." Moore, a Baptist minister and former judge, hasn't officially declared his candidacy, but said earlier this month he is "100% confident" that he will be the Republican candidate in the special election. But there are many Republicans and Democrats in the state who believe Moore is a polarizing figure and an embarrassment to the party. Former White House deputy chief of staff Josh Raffel said Moore's petition for the special election was rife with a number of irregularities. According to Raffel, Moore

Metera is an action-RPG set in a fictional future that takes place ten centuries after a meteor shower sent the Earth into a state of chaos and devastation. Players take on the role of a young woman who must work her way through a post-apocalyptic Earth in a quest to locate and destroy the pieces of the meteor and save the planet from destruction. Key Features: Player progression is largely determined by how the player fights and how he/she interacts with non-player characters. Players may have to accomplish certain goals in order to recruit certain NPCs, defend themselves from NPCs, forge tools that may be used later to accomplish their next goal or they might be tasked with guarding a location until certain events occur. Players are rewarded with experience points and money in order to buy new weapons and items, and by distributing this currency they can trade it in for new tools and equipment. The weapons have different stats, such as strength, speed, accuracy, firing rate, health, etc. They also have different parts which may be swapped out depending on which weapons the player decides to use. Player's performance in game and how the player fights can significantly alter the overall world state, depending on how many NPCs the player kills and how he/she attacks. The player can also perform special actions, such as hiding from certain NPCs, triggering traps and recording a special message. Protecting areas While exploring an area, a player can encounter NPC's and fight them. NPCs can be killed and their body parts can be added to an area. When certain NPCs are killed, you will get experience points that you can use to acquire better weapons/tools. You will also get money for killing NPCs. You can also get new areas or items from them. It is possible to stock up on money and then upgrade and improve your weapons by using that money. You can use the money to acquire weapons with better stats. A few items can also be unlocked if they are encountered. Rewards Players will not only get rewards from killing NPCs and collecting their parts, they will also gain experience points that can be spent on equipment and upgrades. Besides money, the player will receive a number of rewards for completing certain activities. Each reward requires a certain amount of experience points. All rewards, except the last, are made available by rewarding certain specific NPC's with a specific amount of money. In order to get all the rewards, the player will need to accomplish certain objectives. Earning Experience Points: * c9d1549cdd

After purchase the DLC, you will find that the in game store will show a new content. Roadway Planner: New road detailing algorithm, the road planner is able to compute the actual weight distribution and speed of traction vehicles. The road planner also calculates minimum widths on single-lane roads. Defined line limit for aid in the lane to the right.: In order to reduce the risk of collisions, the game now calculates the actual line width and displays this to the player in the lane limit. Improved definition of aid and guidance for the player: In order to save the player from a potentially dangerous situation, the game can display warnings on the map as well as by icons on the HUD. A warning is displayed, if the vehicle is on the very edge of a lane. The value of the angle between the aid line and the direction of travel is now displayed: In order to reduce the risk of collisions, the game now displays the value of the angle between the aid line and the direction of travel. This is helpful, if the aid is blocked by a tree or other obstacle. In order to warn the player, the game displays the aid angle in a larger font. The clearance height of the extreme edge of the tank is now displayed: In order to save the player from a potentially dangerous situation, the game now displays the height of the extreme edge of the tank. If the tank is on the edge of the lane, this value is displayed. A danger sign is displayed for extremely narrow roads: In order to warn the player, the game now displays a danger sign next to the narrow road. In order to save the player from a potentially dangerous situation, the game now displays a danger sign next to the narrow road. The clearance height of the rear of the farm machinery is now displayed. In order to save the player from a potentially dangerous situation, the game now displays the clearance height of the back of the farm machinery. The game now draws a guideline for the heavy transport equipment, which points to the direction of travel for better orientation. The two-horse cart has been improved: New models for the two-horse cart have been added. The two-horse cart can now be positioned on slope roads. The height of the vehicles has been adapted. The two-horse cart now has its own lane clearance height. Improved orientation on sloped roads, if the wheel of the two-horse cart is turned. If an error occurs

What's new in DOA6 Quot;Nova Quot; Sci-Fi Body Suit - Marie Rose:

: A computer rendering of a pirate-bot and his harpoon, courtesy of Raphrock There's a mass of tribal tribes scattered across the planet Elora in the Upsideoean Region. Each of them has their own technology, their own flavour, their own specialised clubs and fueds. Some of them are very friendly, others have - to put it bluntly - a penchant for fighting and toying with the dead with macabre and fiddle-faddy technolastic means. No-one has ever heard of them. They are also hideous, misshapen and diabolically xenophobic. Everyone knows that Elora is a place of creatures of flesh and blood, and that every one, that is except Elora's hoards of Outsiders. No-one save Abbitrians can see them - but the abbitrians know they are there, just as the tribe that call themselves the Whelk has, without doubt, got its hands full with the Whelk. The Outsiders are tall and humanoid - but it's not impossible that they're not entirely human, just as all Elorans might harbour bad feelings towards their neighbours. Just as the Elorans are, without doubt, not entirely human. Also, they might know that the abbitrians are evil doers of dastardly deeds, just as all abbitrians know the tribes are nasty and have nasty habits and that the Elorans, no-doubt, are bad. Weaving this all together, we get the conclusion that the aubittarians are merely murderous savages. An elorianian conscript ready for action I should have also mentioned that every one of them is massive. I mean massive. Ye weel, right lad, the Whelk's thrashing about, the abbitrians are domineering little bastards, buiding great walls like they don't need, and some abbitrians are behaving ever so colony-ily. The tribes are keeping their heads down, and yarrh?? no-doubt, a member of the Whelk tribe has been dying bloody week after week, been gettin' something right off the top of his head. It's on da bucket. Ye look like a ginger abbitarian, playin' wi' ye laddie. Meant no offence,
