The company's board has reportedly selected Sergey Brin as CEO, according to a published report. He would reportedly take on the role in the coming months, at age 49. The board's pick over the two others had been rumored since July. Visit Business Insider's homepage for more stories. At age 49, Google co-founder and current third-ranking executive Sergey Brin has reportedly been picked as the company's next CEO, according to a published report. The report was based on a source with knowledge of the matter who declined to be named, according to Reuters, but was confirmed by Re/code as well as The Verge. The source also said that the board had recently discussed the succession planning after longtime CEO Larry Page confirmed he would step down from the role. "Larry is really looking forward to handing the reins off to Sergey," the source told Re/code. Brin has been CEO of Google's other co-founders Larry Page and Eric Schmidt. The board has been discussing succession planning for months The board's choice over Brin's two other co-founders, Page and Schmidt, had been rumored for several months, since Page announced that he would step down from the position in August. He's been CEO of Google's parent company, Alphabet, for a decade. In July, Page confirmed that he'd be stepping down after Alphabet reported better-than-expected earnings, citing family reasons. More recently, Schmidt has had to step down from his role as CEO at Nest, Google's smart-home subsidiary, after he came under scrutiny over a new partnership that may violate Google's partner guidelines. Reportedly, the board has been discussing succession planning for months, Google

So I have a Python dictionary with numeric values in it. I want to see what's the most common pair. This is the dictionary : d = {6: [5, 4, 4, 3, 2], 7: [6, 5, 4, 3], 8: [6, 4], 9: [7, 7, 7, 5, 4, 2, 1, 1, 2], 10: [9, 7, 6, 5, 6, 5, 3, 2]} I first removed all the duplicates. Then I sorted all the values and formed a dictionary containing the lowest value and the corresponding highest value. The sorting was done using heapq.nlargest() function. dict = {6: [5, 4, 4, 3, 2], 7: [6, 5, 4, 3], 8: [6
