I would like to schedule a task to run in the background at the same time that the main thread is running. I have not come across any examples of how to do this. The official documentation appears to be pretty sparse. A: You can use an ExecutorService to do things concurrently with the main thread. You can create your own ExecutorService to do things concurrently that is different than the main thread, such as scheduling to perform a separate job on a background thread. If you are looking to schedule something to run at the same time as the main thread then there are plenty of better ways than just using an ExecutorService. What if you want to run something concurrently with the main thread? You should be thinking about what you want to do in the background, not thinking of ways to coordinate it with the main thread. Those problems are much better left to the rest of Android itself. This is an archived article

MARTINSVILLE, Va. — A woman whose body was found in a brick basement in Martinsville, Virginia in 2016 is being charged in the case. According to the Virginia State Police, the woman's body was discovered in a townhouse in the Ridgeview area of Martinsville. It's unclear if the woman died of an accidental gunshot wound or a homicide. Virginia State Police obtained an arrest warrant on Thursday for 30-year-old Kristina Marie Abo, who is believed to have been residing in the townhouse where the body was found. Police say the woman's remains have been sent to the Virginia Department of Forensic Science in Richmond for an autopsy. Police say they are still investigating the woman's death and currently there are no suspects. Police say the autopsy will be the first time Abo has been interviewed since the woman's death. Anyone with information regarding the case is asked to call Trooper J.D. Denton of the Virginia State Police or Crime Stoppers at 1-866-411-TIPS (8477).
