Train of Afterlife is a Visual Novel, and quite a challenging one! Its content is pretty deep, so if you're looking for a short story, I suggest you read this first. I know the story of the Train of Afterlife was pretty short, but I promise, you're going to enjoy the hell out of it. And I'll even give you my affiliate link at the end! About the Game Once upon a time, you were a normal person: you went to school, you ate, you slept and then you died. You didn't know exactly how, but at some point you woke up in the Afterlife. Now, you're not really sure where you are. On your first day, you learn the basic rules of the afterlife (there are none!) and also your own name, as well as the names of the other passengers on board. You also discover that you are connected to all of them: there's some kind of link between them. The story really starts when you suddenly notice that there is one person on board who seems to be missing. She is one of your fellow passengers, and you have an urge to find her. Will you succeed? Find out below. FAQ Is this game free to play? Yes, it's free to play! You can start with the game right away, choose your ending and start your adventure! How long will the game last? The game will take about an hour and a half to finish, plus it will last you 5 to 10 hours of entertainment. What will I play? Train of Afterlife is a Visual Novel. You can walk around with the character, read the text and respond to questions and events by selecting one of the 5 available choices. Where can I find the answers to my questions? There are no gameplay hints in the game, you're going to need some imagination. Is this game suitable for kids? Definitely, the game is rated Teen 13+! The story is pretty dark and I don't think the gameplay is suitable for younger players. And if you have kids, I suggest you download the sample game, and see for yourself. How can I get my affiliate link? The game allows you to have and unlock a gallery of endings, as well as view the cutscene that you select at the end of the game. For those who read English, I'd like

The text adventure game Train of Afterlife puts you in the shoes of Eriko Murakami, a high school girl who believes that she has lost everything when she dies: her memory, and her will to live. To find a purpose again, she embarks on a journey where she meets all of her deceased relatives. Will you be able to figure out what they want from you? And what is your own purpose? Game Overview: After a tragic car accident, the parents of fifteen-year-old Emily Dickinson succumb to the grief that their daughter has suffered and commit suicide. However, their suicides go far deeper, because the family is actually a cover for the murder of a young girl. With a mysterious box, a haunting poem and a telepathic child who can see into her future, Emily Dickinson must learn to prevent her parents' suicide by saving herself. What do you mean by "dead man on the shore"? Have you seen the movie "A Quiet Room"? McCallclose Library is an independent, not-for-profit educational organization, dedicated to enhancing the literary experience for the entire family. Overview/Description: If you missed it before, don't miss our earlier release, Friday the 13th: The Game [PC]! As camp counselors, you will have to train your campers and help them survive an onslaught of undead horrors. Your adrenaline will be pumping, you will need to make difficult decisions, and you will need to prepare yourself to lead your campers through a hellish night of terror. The player will work with five campers who will be joining him/her on their escape from Camp Crystal Lake. You will have to make sure that they all survive until the end of the night, by managing their stamina, hunger, and sanity levels. Camp counselors who will need to make sacrifices to help campers. You will need to constantly keep your eye on their current condition. The monster will roam the campsite, searching for blood and cadavers, and will only become enraged if it finds you and your campers. It is advised to stick together and be prepared to use melee weapons, such as axes, knives, and machetes. Use your brain before you run around and attack the monsters, so that you can complete your mission. The game ends at dawn, when the

What's new:

The Air Wales promotional event "Air Wales Trains of Afterlife" is the most ambitious event ever held to showcase the service. A joint marketing and promotion campaign of Air Wales and Wales Express, Trains of Afterlife promoted travel between Cardiff and London with a ceremony at its base at Porthmadog, and another ceremony at St David's Cathedral, Cardiff on Wednesday 4 February 2009. A specially-manufactured train which took approximately thirteen weeks to build, the Trains of Afterlife proved an instant national success, and changed the face of promotional tourism in Wales in the immediate aftermath of the global economic crisis. The news of the week Launch Event The launch event for the Trains of Afterlife took place at Porthmadog, which still maintains an air service to London, while Wales Express maintains its successful service to destinations beyond Cardiff Airport, serving Spain and Portugal, with seven days' notice and good connections to most cities from Porthmadog on demand The inaugural service of the Trains of Afterlife started at 3pm on Wednesday 4 February 2009 with a ceremony taking place at the foot of the dolmen stones of Dre's Stone Circle before the train departed the Penrhyn Quarry Railway depot at Porthmadog station arriving at St David's Cathedral, Cardiff at 6.54pm. The train then traveled down the Great Orme Road and into Llanrumney station just before 6.55pm. Before the ceremony, BBC Wales interviewed Lloyd Williams, chairman of Offa's Dyke Trust, and Philip Cleaver, descendant of William Caxton, of William's train and the 60 passenger MG321MT Kestrel, which, until it broke down in November 2009, had travelled the line for 22 years. Plane Trouble After the ceremony, a small gathering was held at the foot of the 18 centimetre deep sand dunes at the site of an old Roberts' store, bordered by the railway line, at Porthmadog beach where there is a plane on permanent display for visitors The break down of the Air Wales BAe 146K (Registered G-CWBP) at the same time as the Trains of Afterlife close to St David's Cathedral was a UK first, but not the first accident for the train in its 24 hours of operation. In November 2007, before the train's journey had even begun, the rear door of the vehicle was damaged
