White Hot Chocolate Solutions can provide a complete weight loss solution to your needs. These centers can be found at local hospitals and weight loss centers. They are necessary before a person decides to undergo any bariatric surgery such as gastric bypass, gastric bands, laparoscopic banding, or now, lap-colonic bypass. If you are looking for weight loss . See more ideas about Weight loss program, Lose weight and weight loss. Weight Loss Surgery refers to weight loss surgical operations performed to reduce excess body fat. The majority of weight loss surgery procedures are performed in The United States for the treatment of morbid obesity. Typically, weight loss surgeries involve removal of part or all of the stomach (gastric bypass), rerouting the intestine (gastric banding), or a combination of the two operations (gastric banding and gastric bypass). Some of the procedures also may include a restriction of the size of the remaining stomach, resection of the pancreas, or a shortening of the small intestine (ileal bypass). A person may consider having weight loss surgery if he or she is obese (BMI: 35 or above) and unable to lose weight on their own through lifestyle modifications and dieting. This type of weight loss surgery is typically reserved for people who have already tried other types of weight loss surgery or have tried but not succeeded at losing weight through lifestyle modifications and dieting. Weight loss surgeries are also considered for obese people who are also at risk for serious health problems associated with obesity such as type 2 diabetes and high blood pressure. The goal of weight loss surgery is to have the person lose enough weight to become healthier and live a longer life. After surgery, a person usually loses weight rapidly. The average weight loss is about 60 to 70 pounds. The majority of people lose more than 50 percent of their excess weight within 12 months following surgery. This is a large weight loss considering the size of the average person. The U.S. health care system is the only system in the world that will pay for a person's weight loss surgery. Insurance companies don't usually cover the costs of weight loss surgery. However, insurance companies pay for other types of obesity treatments, including medicines, counseling, in-house programs and education programs, which can lead to weight loss. Weight loss surgery is thought to be the most effective treatment for morbid obesity. Unfortunately, the treatment is very invasive and it
