A: That's because your jason object only has 2 properties: `jason = { firstName: 'John', lastName: 'Doe' }` Objects do not have a default constructor, which means that you're not even passing one. You are only passing undefined to your constructor. Either pass your object to the constructor with some properties or create it using `new jason()` (I'm assuming that's what you were trying to do anyway)

class API {
  var jason;
  constructor(user) { this.jason = user; }
}
var api = new API('user123');
console.log(api.firstName);
```
