“It is a shame that we should reach the point where we find that there is only one order of wildlife left on the planet” - Richard Mabey Rovering Routes and Seasons with the Javari Titi (Callicebus cupreonulosus) "With strong aims as learning, with a delight that is inexhaustible, the Javari Titi is capable of carrying out intense research and, more importantly, the birth of small children, they are born healthy and in good condition. We have observed them carrying rocks at least a quarter of a kilogram in weight, moving, in true Sapajãin way, with the precision and speed of well-trained storks. The Javari Titi offers a landscape and environmental education of priceless value, particularly for the youngest members of the public, who have never seen a living animal with such purpose. This characteristic of the Javari Titi has given rise to a new era of conservation and has afforded us a rare opportunity to observe, spend time and create projects based on the knowledge and affection of the people of Amazonia." 17.
