And there's at least one new method that have been added to the VB.NET framework 4.0 to fix this issue: SubsituteWith ( Actually i have used this code and its working fine, but what i wanted to do that whenever user try to login with a wrong email id or password user must stay on same page else user will be redirects to other page. I.e., if user enter wrong email id / password user should stay on same page otherwise redirect to login.aspx. However the way the 2nd method did fix the problem, did also delete the cookie, and in my case, I want to keep the session (login cookie). As another user has already solved, here is the VB.NET code which i have used in my project :- I have checked your code and i got "Format Its happening because you are using cookies named "__RequestVerificationToken". If you have to delete this cookie and keep the cookies you need, then you can make it work, though if you are deleting the cookies, then the user will stay at the page (which is the problem here). Many thanks for sharing this it helped me a lot however i have 2 problems. I have 3 forms, one is the login form, one is the register form, other is the forgot password form. The problem is whenever a user login to login form and then try to go to register form, i always get a page error (System.Web.HttpException) with the 6d1f23a050
