Autodesk Autocad 2018 v14.12 Professional I've heard that Autodesk wasn't going to add userdefined proxies to their apps until they added the revit core product to their suite. Is that true? Does anyone know or have any idea? A: Yes, it's true - I am a revit developer and we don't even have any support to create them at Autodesk. Remember the sad parrot who was chained up, fed dog food, left to die and didn't even receive a burial? It's no secret that animals don't give much thought to much of their living conditions, but sometimes they can give us a few lessons. British researchers have been researching the value of dogs to people in terms of health and well-being and apparently they are as useful as ever, because they have helped in the development of a new Alzheimer's diagnostic test. Read also: The coldest place on earth for dogs, a cold cat | Make a heartwarming gift: Dogs and cats adopt cats and dogs Researchers from New York and Oxford conducted studies on how long dogs live and what indicators are most helpful in deciding when an animal has become sick. They combined the results from four prospective cohort studies with those from other sources. The experts identified that eye problems, skin problems, intestinal problems, and behavioral signs such as sniffing and scratching were all linked to an increased risk of future dementia, whereas canine cancer, urinary problems, and bone disease were risk factors of death. Meanwhile, the longer dogs live, the lower their chances of dying and of dying sooner and the lower their chances of developing dementia. At 85 weeks, the average dog's life expectancy is about 15 years, while for cats it's about 12 years. A dog's expected age of death may be between 8 and 13 years, and an estimated one-third of dogs die before the age of 10. However, the researchers found that the risk of death rises gradually as a dog ages and that 10% of dogs could be diagnosed with dementia by the time they reach the age of 70 and 13% by age of 80. "Dogs and cats provide owners with companionship and activities, but companion animals are much more than that. Dogs and cats can actually predict Alzheimer's as well as any other disease," said lead
