Thus, brushing with a fluoride dentifrice is not necessary. A recent study in the September issue of the Journal of the American Academy of Cosmetic Dentistry contends that dentifrices can induce the expression of the genes that produce the pigment melanin in the saliva. These observations suggest that there is a universal source of antimicrobial molecules in the mouth. Monday, July 13, 2014 Good Tips for Cosmetic Dentists This article by Dr. Paul Barten, from the June 2014 issue of the Journal of the American Academy of Cosmetic Dentistry, includes some great tips for a successful cosmetic dentistry practice. 1. Patience is the first clinical skill, not the ability to perform. If you try to hurry the patient or interupt with questions, you will make patients uncomfortable. 2. Do not take dictation, do not tell a patient about the procedures and the treatment options you have available. The patient should be able to talk about anything that concerns them. 3. Practice proper cleanliness and patient safety. Keep all instruments and materials in disposable plastic containers. A sterile environment means no infections. Be sure the patients medical history is adequate and complete. 4. Always use a dental mouth rinse for patients who are sensitive to the oral environment. Saturday, June 28, 2014 Tips to Help You Manage a Dental Emergency An emergency dentist is wherever and whenever you need dental help. There is no time to prepare a plan because a major car accident or an infection in the mouth requires immediate attention. Here are some tips c6a93da74d
